

ABOUT INDUSTRY

The steel sector is crucial to the development of any modern economy. It is the backbone & a major contributor to country's manufacturing output.

India's economic growth is largely contingent upon the growth of the Indian Steel Industry. The housing and construction sector, where major chunk of steel is consumed is boosting the demand for steel through increase in per capita incomes and social sector schemes. The targeted focus on the "Make-in-India" vision by the Indian Government is aiding the Steel Industry to grow and be able to supply the required quantities and grades of steel much needed by the end-users.

The demand for steel is also expected to grow in conventional areas, such as construction, automotive, housing, steel tubes, pipes, and packaging, this sector offers good prospects. Specialized steel will be in demand in hi-tech engineering industries.

Thus, the steel industry offers tremendous growth prospects in the time to come. With rising number of steel manufacturers in India with a steady international and domestic demand, the future of Indian Steel Industry seems bright.
